CONFIDENT MR. GEORGE.

HE TELLS WHY HE EXPECTS TO BE THE NEXT MAYOR OF NEW-YORK.

Henry George is confident that he will be the next Mayor of New-York. He says that the overwhelming majority of the labor organizations will fulfill their promises to vote for him next month. He has good reasons to believe, he says, that no candidate will be able to take the mansion of city hall away from him without being renounced by at least a majority of the labor forces.

"This will not be won from him by politicians of the Democratic and Republican organizations. He has promised personal respect to the leaders of both of these parties, and he will not be away from him by politicians of the Democratic and Republican organizations, but he will be renounced by at least a majority of the labor forces," he declares.

"He will fulfill his duties as they are prescribed by law, and he will undertake to place men in the city council to work with him in the most responsible departments in a manner that will be satisfactory to the labor men. The labor men," he continues, "are earnestly interested in the interests of the people, and they are independent of the men who make politics a profession. They cannot be deflected from their course by efforts of political influence."
