THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR
MASTER WORKMAN POWDERLY TALKS ABOUT THE ORDER.

He tells of its organization, membership, prospects, and what it expects in the future.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3—Terence V. Prower, the founder of the Knights of Labor, addressed a meeting of the guilds at a time when the organization of labor is on the increase throughout the country, and when the Knights of Labor, which is the largest organization of labor, is making an effort to increase its membership. The speech of Mr. Prower was listened to with great interest, and the meeting was adjourned.

"You are right in saying that the Knights of Labor is a union which has a future. We are not afraid of the future, as we are sure that the Knights of Labor will continue to grow and that the union will become stronger. We are not afraid of the future, as we are sure that the Knights of Labor will continue to grow and that the union will become stronger.

"The Knights of Labor is a union which has a future. We are not afraid of the future, as we are sure that the Knights of Labor will continue to grow and that the union will become stronger.
