STRIKES AMONG ARTISANS

IS THERE A CLIQUE OF AGITATORS AT WORK?

A CENTRAL ORGANIZATION THAT SUPPORTS
STRIKES—SIDE-HANDS, TAILORS, FURNITURE-MAKERS, AND MANY OTHERS—NEVER \nHAD A CONSCIOUS PLAN. BUT THE STRIKES OF 1877, 1878, AND 1879 SHOWED THAT A \nCentral organization could be formed. It was then that the idea of a Central was put into \npractice. The idea was to organize the strike workers into a Central and to give them \nthe means of carrying out their ends. The idea was that all the workers should be \norganized into a Central and that all the workers should have a voice in the Central.\n
The idea was that the Central should be a democratic organization and that all the \nworkers should have a voice in the Central. The idea was that the Central should be a \ndemocratic organization and that all the workers should have a voice in the Central. The \nidea was that the Central should be a democratic organization and that all the workers \should have a voice in the Central.

Hershey's is a well known company of the West, and its workers are well known for their \nability to work. The company has always been a good employer, and its workers have \never had any trouble with the company. The company has always been a good employer, \nand its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The company has always \been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The \company has always been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble \with the company.

The workers at Hershey's are well paid, and they work hard. The company has always \been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The \company has always been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble \with the company. The company has always been a good employer, and its workers have \never had any trouble with the company. The company has always been a good employer, \and its workers have never had any trouble with the company.

The workers at Hershey's are well paid, and they work hard. The company has always \been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The \company has always been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble \with the company. The company has always been a good employer, and its workers have \never had any trouble with the company. The company has always been a good employer, \and its workers have never had any trouble with the company.

The workers at Hershey's are well paid, and they work hard. The company has always \been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The \company has always been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble \with the company. The company has always been a good employer, and its workers have \never had any trouble with the company. The company has always been a good employer, \and its workers have never had any trouble with the company.

The workers at Hershey's are well paid, and they work hard. The company has always \been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The \company has always been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble \with the company. The company has always been a good employer, and its workers have \never had any trouble with the company. The company has always been a good employer, \and its workers have never had any trouble with the company.

The workers at Hershey's are well paid, and they work hard. The company has always \been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The \company has always been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble \with the company. The company has always been a good employer, and its workers have \never had any trouble with the company. The company has always been a good employer, \and its workers have never had any trouble with the company.

The workers at Hershey's are well paid, and they work hard. The company has always \been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The \company has always been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble \with the company. The company has always been a good employer, and its workers have \never had any trouble with the company. The company has always been a good employer, \and its workers have never had any trouble with the company.

The workers at Hershey's are well paid, and they work hard. The company has always \been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The \company has always been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble \with the company. The company has always been a good employer, and its workers have \never had any trouble with the company. The company has always been a good employer, \and its workers have never had any trouble with the company.

The workers at Hershey's are well paid, and they work hard. The company has always \been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The \company has always been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble \with the company. The company has always been a good employer, and its workers have \never had any trouble with the company. The company has always been a good employer, \and its workers have never had any trouble with the company.

The workers at Hershey's are well paid, and they work hard. The company has always \been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The \company has always been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble \with the company. The company has always been a good employer, and its workers have \never had any trouble with the company. The company has always been a good employer, \and its workers have never had any trouble with the company.

The workers at Hershey's are well paid, and they work hard. The company has always \been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The \company has always been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble \with the company. The company has always been a good employer, and its workers have \never had any trouble with the company. The company has always been a good employer, \and its workers have never had any trouble with the company.

The workers at Hershey's are well paid, and they work hard. The company has always \been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble with the company. The \company has always been a good employer, and its workers have never had any trouble \with the company. The company has always been a good employer, and its workers have \never had any trouble with the company. The company has always been a good employer, \and its workers have never had any trouble with the company.